Instructions

In this task your grammar, punctuation and vocabulary will be tested in an extended piece of writing.

Your focus in this task should be on the range of sentence structures and punctuation marks you use to control your writing.

Spelling will not be assessed in this task. You should try to use a wide range of ambitious vocabulary in your response.

You will have 30 minutes for this task.

Extended task

The best things in life are free...

Your local newspaper has started a campaign intended to get people to appreciate what is available at no cost. This could include the local recreation ground, skateboarding park, visits to museums, exploring your local area or even good memories. What one person values may not be considered of any value by someone else.

Write an article for the paper, describing something important to you that is available at no cost.

Remember to use:

- appropriate, varied sentence structures
- a broad range of punctuation to control your writing
- imaginative and precise words to convey meaning.

You will not be marked on your spelling.
